Port Of Tacoma Orders Two New Container Cranes.

In its continuing effort to increase the efficiency in handling its growing pacific Rim container traffic, the port of Tacoma has ordered two new high-speed containers cranes for use at Terminal 4. The two cranes will be built by Sumitomo Heavy Industries, Ltd., in Japan, at the cost of $5.5 million. The two new cranes will stand 18 feet higher than the two IHI container cranes which are currently in use at the terminal.

Terminal 4 is the main Port-operated container terminal, handling lines such as Star Shipping, Blue Star, Columbus, EAC, Hoegh, and Lloyd Brasileiro. The Terminal has two berths (1,542 feet in length), and features direct rail access to warehouse and shipside. With the recent introduction of larger-type container vessels by Star, EAC, and Hoegh, the cranes are viewed as a necessity by the Port, not only to handle its existing carriers, but also to attract new carriers.

Other recent improvements to Terminal 4 include a six-lane, computer-equipped gatehouse which was built in 1983, the enlargement of container storage area to 30 acre, and a 300-food wharf extension.

Another significant improvement was the expansion of the Port's North Intermodal yard, which was the first on-dock intermodal yard on the West Coast. Built in 1981, the yard was recently expanded to handle up to 67 TTX cars, or 23 double-stack cars. Located adjacent to Terminal 4, the facility saves shippers both time and money, because it eliminates the need for trucking containers to get containers from rail to help.

According to Port executive director Larry Killeen, "Our port forecasts project an average increase in West Coast container traffic of 6% over the next decade. Our two new container cranes will give us a competitive advantage in handling a good share of this growth."

In 1984, the Port handled over 61,000 TEU's at Terminal 4. With two new container cranes, that total is expected to more than double by 1994 to over 145,000 TEU's.

The two new cranes are designed with an outreach of 130 feet, and a height from crane rail to spreader of 100 feet. In addition to being about 30% faster than the existing cranes at Terminal 4, the new Sumitomo cranes will be only 88 feet wide. This narrower width will make them more efficient in working adjacent holds in today's larger container ships.

Family Of Chief Satiacum Grieves Over Incarceraton.

Chief Satiacum and Mother in happier days.

U. S. Attorney Stan Pitkin had never been a friend of our people. On the contrary, he had been a formidable foe in spite of the fact that his office was supposed to protect our rights. Before the Boldt decision I had made many appeals to him for assistance in our cause, but he always adamently refused me. When the fishing wars became more violent, Senator Edward Kennedy addressed the hearings of the Senate Sub-Committee on Indian Affairs. He demanded that the Federal government provide legal defence for Indian people in the State of Washington to pursue their case on Treaty fishing rights. Acting under pressure from the Senate and Congress, U.S. Attorney Pitkin launched a court action which ultimately resulted in the highly unpopular "Boldt Decision" of 1974 which gave recognition to Treaty Indians' right to catch 50% of all fish in Washington State waters. Judge Boldt's decision was appealed by the State all the way up to the Supreme Court of the United States where it was upheld. Stan Pitkin was forced to resign after President Jimmy Carter was elected president of the United States due to complaints lodged against him by Indian leaders.

The Boldt decision caused a furor amongst the non-Indian population of the State of Washington, which has not subsided to this day.

During my trial in 1982, telephone callers to radio talk shows had a field day hurling insults at me for my role in bringing about the unpopular Boldt decision. Most of the callers felt I should be given a life-sentence in prision for that reason alone.

Media coverage of Indian activism on behalf of our Treaty and human rights during the 60's was generally biased against us, portraying my people as extreme radicals, hostile without a cause, and me as the arch-villain of it all. It seems truly ironic the news media coverage of my people's struggle for their inherant rights should have been so twisted and distorted, while at the same time the civil rights movement of the Black people in the 60's inspired sympathetic accounts in favour of their advancement. Stories of brutality and violent film footage of the injustices against Black people in the Southern United States aroused the consciences of many throughout the world. The same righteous indignation for the sorrow of my people, our women, our children, was never shown.

Because of the very biased and negative press we received during the fishing wars, attorneys were reluctant to act in our defence. Jack Tanner, a young Black attorney, how-

Howard U. Med Student, Recalls Rural African Childhood.

TACOMA, WA -- Mufaro Dube, who begins studies this fall at Howard University Medical School in Washington, D.C., was born and raised on a subsistance farm in rural southeast Rhodesia (now Zimbabwe).

His parents had nine children. Their dwelling was a mud hut. There were few educational opportunities and health care was minimal.

In spite of these early harships, Dube became a summa cum laude graduate of Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma this past May. He majored in biology.

It was Dube's membership in the Lutheran Church that changed the direction of his life. Lutheran churches affiliated with Pacific Lutheran were offering an all-expenses paid scholarship through the Lutheran Church of Zimbabwe. Dube was told about it, applied and was accepted.

"I had planned to attend the University of Zimbabwe," Dube recalled. "But I was involved in a demonstration against our former government, protesting the drafting of high school students into the military, and was expelled from high school."

Now 27, Dube worked as an apprentice at several jobs before receiving his scholarship five years ago after completing his high school education. "I was beginning to wonder if I would ever have the service-oriented career I had hoped for," he said.

He had long been acutely aware of the need for educational and health services in rural Zimbabwe. Medicine was his first choice because of his fascination with biology and the fact that until recently, health care in Zimbabwe was only for people who could afford to pay for it. And few could.

Beyond his excitement about being able to continue his education, Dube looked forward to Pacific Lutheran "because it would be the first time I would interact with a predominantly white community."

"It took the better part of a year to get adjusted," he continued. "I wasn't sure how to break the ice, nor were the people around me. I got to know people in my classes and labs first."

Language, however, was no problem. English is Zimbabwe's official language and all who go to school learn it. Nor was the level of schooling. Dube estimated that a high school education at home was equivalent to first-year college in the U.S.

Dube's adjustment was also aided by his host family, Rev. Paul Freese and his wife patty of Redeemer Lutheran church in nearby Fircrest. "There home was a place of refuge when things got tough," he said.

And in Washington, D.C., he looks forward to meeting Dr. Ronald and Miriam Heyer, 1963 and 1964 graduates of PLU. Dr. Heyer taught biology at PLU before becoming a curator at the Smithsonian Institution.

Dube is grateful for the opportunity provided him by te university and the churches. "I had to put forth the effort," he said, "but the financial aspect is just as important or I would never have had the chance to show what I can do.

"And Pacific Lutheran does the things that are necessary to help students succeed," he added.

After medical school Dube plans to return to his homeland and begin a general clinical practice. "I hope to work in a hospital," he said. "Government hospitals now provide free care for most people."

Family, Friends Mourns Death Of Mother Helen Grant Simpson.

Words Of Wisdom

JUDGES 7

THEN Jerubbaal, who is Gideon, and all the people that were with him, rose up early, and pitched beside the well of Harod: so that the host of the Midianites were on the north side of them, by the hill of Moreh, in the valley.

And the Lord said unto Gideon, The people that are with thee are too many for me to give the Midianites into their hands, lest Israel vaunt themselves against me, saying, Mine own hand hath saved me.

Now therefore go to, proclaim in the ears of the people, saying, Whosoever is fearful and afraid, let him return and depart early from mount Gilead. And there returned of the people twenty and two thousand; and there remained ten thousand.

And the Lord said unto Gideon, The people are yet too many; bring them down unto the water, and I will try them for thee there: and it shall be, that of whom I say unto thee, This shall go with thee, the same shall go with thee; and of whomsoever I say unto thee, This shall not go with thee, the same shall not go.

So he brought down the people unto the water: and the Lord said unto Gideon, Every one that lappeth of the water with his tongue, as a dog lappeth, him shalt thou set by hemself; likewise every one that boweth down upon his knees to drink.

And the number of them that lapped, putting their hand to their mouth, were three hundred men: but all the rest of the people bowed down upon their knees to drink water.

And the Lord said unto Gideon, By the three hundred men that lapped will I save you, and deliver the Midianites into thine hand: and let all the other people go every man unto his place.

So the people took victuals in their hand, and their trumpets: and he sent all the rest of Israel every man unto his tent, and retained those three hundred men: and the host of Midian was beneath him in the valley.

And it came to pass the same night, that the Lord said unto him, Arise, get thee down tunto the host; for I have delivered it into thine hand.

But if thou fear what they say; and afterward shall thine hands be strengthened to go down unto the host. Then went he down with Phurah his servant unto the outside of the armed men that were in the host.

And the Midianites and the Amalekites and all the children of the east lay along in the valley like grasshoppers for multitude; and their camels were without number, as the sand by the sea side for multitude.

And when Gideon was come, behold, there was a man that told a dream unto his fellow, and said, Behold, I dreamed a dream, and, lo, a cake of barley bread tumbled into the host of Midian, and came unto a tent, and smote it that it fell, and overturned it, that the tent lay along.

And his fellow answered and said, This is nothing else save the sword of Gideon the son of Joash, a man of Israel: for into his hand hath God delivered Midian, and all the host.

And it was so, when Gideon heard the telling of the dream, and the interpretation thereof, that he worshipped, and returned into the host of Israel, and said, Arise; for the Lord hath delivered into your hand the host of Midian.

And he divided the three hundred men into three companies, and he put a trumpet in every man's hand, with empty pitchers, and lamps within the pitchers.

Former Military Base To Be Missionary School.

LAKESIDE, MT -- "...And they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift sword against nation, neither shall they learn war anymore." -- Isaiah2:4

A radical transformation is taking place at this former site of a U.S. Air Force radar station once used as part of the nation's early warning detection system. Volunteer workers have begun converting this military installation to a training school for Christians in preparation for short term foreign service.

Youth With A Mission, an international organization representing over 100 different denominations of Christian faith acquired use of the Lakeside Radar Station recently auctioned by the U.S. Government. David Graham, director of the new Youth With A Mission base stated that it "will serve as a vehicle for local churches in the Pacific Northwest to mobilize Christians from all backgrounds through short, three to five month service to other nations."

Graham stated that the "first Discipleship Training School is scheduled to begin September 16, 1985 and that applications for the school are being accepted. Enrollment is open to those 17 and older with no upper age limit." Training in twelve, one'week segments will be provided by an international mix of teachers representing a broad range of the Christian church. "The school's emphasis will be to help the Christian to establish a deeper, living relatonship to God, and communicate that to others, rather than strictly accumulating information," Graham said.

Located nead Flathead Lake and Glacier National Park, the Youth With A Mission base represents the newest of over 160 permanent bases established in 50 nations by the all-volunteer ministry. Each year more than 15,000 participate in a variety of outreaches the world over.

"The Doctors Prescription

Christ And Zacchaeus

"And Jesus entered and passed through Jericho. And, behold, there was a man named Zacchaeus, which was the chief among the publicans, and he was rich. And he sought to see Jesus who he was; and could not for the press, because he was little of stature. And he ran before, and climbed up into a sycomore tree to see him; for he was to pass that way. And when Jesus came to the place, he looked up, and saw him, and said unto him, Zacchaeus, make haste, and come down; for today I must abide at thy house. And he made haste, and came down, and received him joyfully. And when they saw it, they all murmured, saying, That he was gone to be a guest with a man that is a sinner. And Zacchaeus stood, and said unto the Lord: Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have taken any thing from any man by false accusation, I restore him forefold'. And Jesus said unto him, This day is salvation come to this house, forsomuch as he also is a son of Abraham. For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." Luke 19:1-10

Standing between people is a door. In some cases the door is open and people move back and forth in fellowship and love. In other situations the door is closed and there is no communication and no dimension of understanding or fellowship. Or perhaps the door is open and there is concern about how to keep it so. If we find doors between ourselves and others, our hearts weigh heavily upon a concern for how open or closed the doors may be.

Why does Jesus seek to open the door of Zacchaeus' home? Zacchaeus must have looke out of place in that tree, for he certainly was not the kind who climbs out on tree limbs. This would attract the attention of Christ. And a miracle takes place. What was it that opened the door to human relationship so effectively that Zacchaeus becomes a new person, a new creation?

The key which opened the door was Jesus' acceptance of Zacchaeus. A man left alone and unwanted is shown concern and interest by Christ. The genuiness of Jesus' love for acchaeus was obviously sincere. It warmed the heart of Zacchaeus and he felt acceptance.

The harsh reality of rejection closes the door between human relationships and makes fellowship impossible. Our social structure has a thousand ways of rejecting people, some so subtle and sophisticated that we hardly recognize them. Zacchaeus may be your neighbor, an associate at work, or a lady at the grocery store. Some people are easy to dislike and therefore reject. That is, until we see the other person as Jesus sees him and as a man for whom Christ died. Than we accept him, not for what he is, but as a human being standing before the grace of God.

Vacation Bible School - For The Whole Family.

An all-new and exciting program has been prepared by Bethlehem Baptist Church for Vacation Bible School to be held August 5, 1985 through August 10, 1985. IN THE FOOTSTEPS OF JESUS is the theme for the school, to be held each weekday from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Classes will be offered for all ages from Nursery (ages 2-3) through college age and adult.

A back-to-basics approach to Christian living is offered in VBS. Bible-based lessons will be taught with excitement and variety through the use of many advanced teaching methods. Students will be challenged and involved through such activities as these: song time, Bible study, interesting visual demonstrations, classroom interaction, craft making, and many other innovative methods in keeping with the theme, IN THE FOOTSTEPS OF JESUS.

The challenging lessons confront the student with the challenge to be like Jesus, and leaves no doubt that Jesus is the one to follow.

Workers in the school are needed and welcome, For information regarding attending and/or assisting, please call Sister Irma Miles (473-4155).

Bring the family, friends, and neighbors. There is help (and fun) and spiritual growth for all at Vacation Bible School!

Mt. Hood Festival OF JAZZ

by Eugene Rashad

This year's Mt. Hood Festival of Jazz brings to its stage some of the genre's finest musicians to express the aesthetic and provincial growth of the music over the last several years. In four years the festival has exemplified the public's growing awareness, acceptance, and attendance of this event. No longer is the festival an isthmus surrounded by an ocean of pop and commercial music lovers who withhold their entertainment dollars for a rock concert ticket. In fact, the rock music enthusiasts are part of the reason for the increase in attendance and interest in the festival.

An extravaganza of song and savor, with 11 Gresham and Portland area restaurants providing a variety of gourmet and delicatessen foods and beverages, the Festival of Jazz is a two-day event held the first weekend of August.

On Saturday, August 3, the festival kicks off with the fusion group Spyro Gyra and their blending of jazz with a funky and Latin twist. Art Farmer plays more flugelhorn than trumpet these days, though he is best known for his trumpet work with Lionel Hampton during the 1950s. He brings a quartet for some exciting jazz.

Richie Cole's sound resembles that of hornman Phil Woods. Cole is great in concert and is considered one of the bright stars on alto. Jazz veteran James "Red" Holloway brings his big-sounding tenor along with a quartet for some straight-ahead jazz.

One of the highlights of the day will be the Jimmy Smith Quartet. Without question the most spectacular player who single-handedly pioneered the jazz organ during the 50s, he will win the crowd.

The Tom Grant Band will bring some "home style cookin'" to the stage, as will Ron Steen and the Festival All Stars. Rounding out the first day is maestro Hal Malcolm with the Festival Vocal Ensemble and some TBA acts.

On Sunday Sarah Vaughan will make an appearance with her trio (see page 10) and later with the Count Basie Band, who will be making their first festival appearance here. Ramsey Lewis has of late been experimenting with fusion and will do that here, though still an accomplished jazz pianist.

Milt Jackson/Ray Brown Quartet are the true jazz diplomats of the festival. The Eiji Kitamura Quartet is a swing group led by clarinetist Kitamura from Japan.

Jeff Lorber introduced Kenny Gorelick to Portlanders and since that time Kenny G. has forged a successful solo career. This multi-reed man can fill the air with notes that burst with energy and soul. Larry McVey conducts the Festival Big Band, and other surprises are slated. So the legend continues at this year's Mt. Hood Festival of Jazz, with tickets on sale at all G.I. Joe's Ticket Outlets.

Shucks Annual Million

The 5th Annual "SCHUCK'S MILLION DOLLAR FISH DERBY" will be held on Sunday, August 18, 1985, between the hours of 6:00 a.m. and 6:00 p.m. on the Puget Sound. In accordance with the two preceeding years of the Derby, five specially tagged coho salmon will be released with a special SCHUCK'S tag on their dorsal fin. The five salmon will be released at various location within the boundary locations - with the northern boundary running through the southern tip of Camano Island and the southern boundary being the Tacoma Narrows Bridge. Hood Canal is not included in the Derby boundaries.

The WASHINGTON EASTER SEAL SOCIETY will receive $4 of every $15 registration fee from the "1985 SCHUCK'S MILLION DOLLAR FISH DERBY." The Samuel and Althea Stroum Scholarship at the University of Washington School of Fisheries will again be renewed for $5,000 and another $6,000 will be donated to local salmon enhancement programs.

As in the previous two years, the fish will be released 72 hours prior to the start of the Derby. This period of time allows the salmon to acclimate to the "new" environment and begin to feed.

Help Needed For Puyallup Fair

The Western Washington Fair wants to hire a number of young people for new program they're calling "peer group security."

"Members will help regular security guards with crowd control at youth-oriented grandstand shows and special events during the Fair," said Security Superintendent Bill Luebke. "They won't be commissioned or armed."

Peer group security guards have been used with success at similar functions around the Pacific Northwest because they relate better to younger audiences, Luebke said.

Applicants must be at leat 19, in good physical condition, have a neat appearance and be able to work shifts from noon to midnight.

For an application, call the Western Washington Fair at 841-5002, or send a resume to the Fair at P. O. Box 430, Puyallup, WA 98731. All applications must be returned to the fair no later than August 14th

The Western Washington Fair opens Friday, September 6th, and closes Sunday, September 22nd.

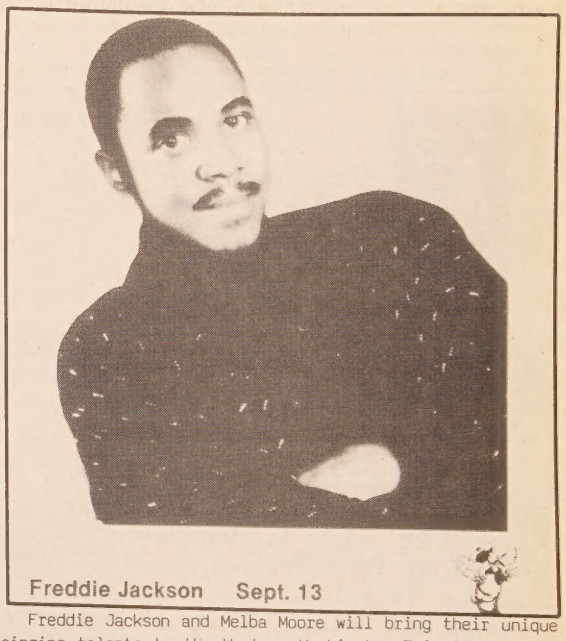
Freedie Jackson, Mable Moore Bring Unique Singing To The Puyallup Fair.



Freddie Jackson Sept. 13

Freddie Jackson and Melba Moore will bring their unique singing talents to the Western Washington Fair Sept. 13th.

Both appeal to a wide variety of tastes, from gospel to hard rock.

Moore uses her four-octave range to create an unforgettable sound every time she sings. She has sung with show business legends, including Frank Sinatra, Johnny Mathis and harry Belafonte. An established actress, Moore starred in "Hair" on Broadway, and will have her own CBS television comedy, to premiere this fall.

Jackson comes from a singing family. He began his career in New York with the same church choir where two generations of his relatives performed. Since then, Jackson has branched out into writing, supplying lyrics for many of the songs in their show.

Jackson and Moore will entertain Fair audiences in the grandstand 5 and 8 p.m. Friday, September 13th. Tickets are $11 and $12, available at Ticketmaster. The Puyallup fair opens Friday, September 6, and runs through Sunday, September 22nd.

PSALM 31

IN thee, O Lord, do I put my trust; let me never be ashamed: deliver me in thy righteousness.

Bow down thine ear to me; deliver me speedily: be thou my strong rock, for an house of defence to save me.

For thou are my rock and my fortress; therefore for thy names's sake lead me, and guide me.

Pull me out of the net that they have laid privily for me: for thou art my strength.

Into thine hand I commit my spirit: thou hast redeemed me, O Lord God of truth.

I have hated them that regard lying vanities: but I trust in the Lord.

I will be glad and rejoice in thy mercy: for thou hast considered my trouble; thou hast known my soul in adversities;

And hast not shut me up into the hand of the enemy: thou hast set my feet in a large room.

Have mercy upon me, O Lord, for I am in trouble: mine eye is consumed with grief, yea, my soul and my belly.

For my life is spent with grief, and my years with sighing: my strength faileth because of mine iniquity, and my bones are consumed.

I was a reproach among al mine enemies, but especially among my neighbours, and a fear to mine acquaintance: they that did see me without fled from me.

We welcome news of your church and civic events.

Hud Honors Poster Contest Winners

SEATTLE -- Seven children received $100 U.S. Saving Bonds as prizes in a ceremony July 25th. The seven are regional winners in the Fair Housing Poster Contest sponsored by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Jonathan Toews, 9, a third-grader at Seattle's Stevens Elementary this past year, is also a winner at the national level, for which he will receive an additional $200 Bond. Jonathan's colorful poster celebrating "Open Minds + Open Doors = Fair Housing" placed first in the Regional contest and third in the K-3 category judging in Washington, D.C. The son of John and Eleanor Toews of 2509 E. Galer, Seattle, Jonathan participated in The Option Program (TOP) at Stevens. TOP is an urban-oriented program which teaches young people to appreciate living in the inner city.

Other contest winners to be honored are:

- Shahraim Allen, 9, a third-grader at Life Christian School in Tacoma. He is the son of Mr. & Mrs. William A. Allen of 1017 East 31st St. in Tacoma. Shahraim's poster placed 2nd in the K-3 group.

- Toiya Currant, 9, daughter of Ms. Wanda Currant of 202 23rd Ave., Seattle, is also a TOP third-grader Stevens Elementary. Her poster placed third in the K-3 category.

- Audrey Koleber, 11, is the daughter of Helen & Kenneth Koleber of 4611 East K Street in Tacoma. Her poster won first place in the 4-6 group. Audrey formerly of Sheridan Elementary, will enter Stewart Jr. High this September.

- Linda Womack, daughter of Minha and Raymond Womack, is 13 and will enter McIlveigh Jr. High in the Fall. As a 6th grader at Sheridan Elementary in Tacoma, she received a ten-speed bicycle as a prize when her poster was judged best among that city's entries. her poster placed second in the 4-6 group at the Regional level.

- Autumn Aran is 10, and was also a student in the Stevens TOP program. She will attend Meany Middle School in September. Autumn is the daughter of Leah and Marc Boman of 1700 35th Ave. in Seattle. her poster placed third in the 4-6 category.

- Margaret May, 14, will attend Lincoln High in Portland in the Fall. She is spending the summer in Seattle. Margaret's entry won first place in the 7-9 category for the Portland area, where she attended Mt. Tabor Middle School.

The July 25 ceremony was at the HUD Offices of the Arcade Plaza Building, 2nd and Union. Regional Administrator-Regional Housing Commissioner William Y. Nishimura will present the prizes,. and all the winners' posters was on display.

These dates pertain only to students who are enrolling in Clover Park for the first time and to students who are re-entering the District. Students currently enrolled in the Clover park School District are not affected.

During the enrollment period, registration will be conducted at all school buildings in Clover Park from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day. Those parents and guardians whose schedules present a conflict with these hours may contact the building administrator at the school where their children will attend to make arrangements for for a mutaually convenient registration time.

Parents and legal guardianws who take advantage of this registration period should bring their childs's up-to-date immunization record. Washington State law requires that, before a child may attend school, documentation of immunization or exemption be provided the school where the child will attend.

To enter kindergarten, a child must be five years of ageon or before August 31, or have successfully completed kindergarten. The child's birth certificate or other proof of age must be shown when registering for kindergarten or frst grade.

Parents enrolling new students in grades 1-12 can aid the registration process by providing information concerning grades and credits earned at the previous school. For elementary students, progress reports from the school they last attended will provide pertinent information for Clover Park school personnel.

Questions concerning what school in the Clover Park District a child should attend may be directed to Mrs. Jan Saum, 756-8332. Classes for all students in grades kindergarten through 12 will begin September 4.

For information, please contact Jerry Storvick, Coordinator of Pupil Services, 756-8512.

The Freedom Plan.

In the next few months, you will be hearing extensively about the newly-formed and yet-to-be-anounced Council for the Economic Development of Black Americans.

Shortly, the Council, of which I am the chairman, will announce a drive called Buy Freedom Month (October) to encourage the Black consumer to spend a larger portion of his or her income with a Black business.

But unlike the typical self-help program, and there have been many, this one is aimed at strengthening the institutions and not the businesses exclusively.

On July 19th, some 30 Council members retreated to a small town in upstate New York to reflect on our objectives and put our hearts and souls in perspective. We opened our "strategic seminar" with prayer as a reminder that our efforts are possible only because of the Grace of God.

Dr. H. Naylor Fitzhugh, Chairman of the board of the National Association of Market Developers and a Council member, reminded us that our objective in a moral and ethical sense was to "do good while doing well and to do well by doing good."

We also agreed that this Buy Freedom campaign is not a boycott of non-Black businesses. And while no economic revitalization of our community can take place without strengthening Black firms, the concept must be inclusive enough to reach each and every Black person.

We will begin that process by recruiting one million Blacks who are already sold on being free and to use them to educate as many of the other 29 million as possible. Minimal energy will be expended on Blacks who need to be convinced that racism is rampant or that economic development is the solution.

If the Black consumer will increase purchases from Black firms from the current 6.6 to roughly 50 percent, out community will be well on the road to recovery from the patterns of family deterioration and excessive unemployment.

By buying from Black firms, we create jobs for blacks and retain wealth in our own neighborhoods. Jobs, simply put, are created where money is spent (invested).

We now spend almost 95 percent of our money with groups who spend less than 5 percent of their money with us. That trade deficit has exported the jobs in our neighborhoods and improted unemployment, welfare programs and defeat.

To identify "deserving" Black businesses, we have created the Freedom Seal, to be displayed in store windows and on counter tops. These Freedom Businesses, as one condition to receive the Freedom Seal, will commit themselves to the goals of the campaign.

The Seal will tell you that the business displaying it has agreed to:

(4) from some of the increased sales derived from the Buy Freedom campaign, create new jobs and

(5) become a role model as a caring entrepreneur and a leader in solving the chronic problems of our people.

The thousands of consumers who take the Freedom Pledge will target Black businesses for increased sales. The Freedom Pledge, which is free, will earn a discount during our Freedom Spend-In in October with Black stores and in response to adveertisements run in Black newspapers and radio stations by the Freedom Businesses.

Community organizations and groups can earn income by selling the Freedom Seals and individual Freedom Workers will get a commission on each sale. In this way, the institutions are strenghtened and part-time jobs are created while the Black businesses enjoy a Freedom Boom.

This campaign, while providing a competitive edge for "deserving" Black firms (Freedom Businesses), will not be a boom for the Black businesses tha specialize in higher prices to Black people and insulting behavior.

While the educated consumers will be the best customers the Freedom Businesses ever had, they will be anathema to Black businesses who do not adopt the five points of community development. The "invisible hand" of supply and demand will keep them from the increased sales.

By failing to meet the basic needs of the community's development, they will suffer looses and in some cases close because they cannot compete in this new climate. The raised consciousness of the Black consumer will avoid those who do not grow and seek those businesses who prove their worth by producing in the cheapest and best way possible.

The Black consumers, by their buying and abstention from buying, will determine what should be produced and/or sold and by whom. The consumer as our new community authority will direct our new climate.

The climate of the Black consumer helping the Black business who in turn helps the Black church and the NAACP who in turn helps the Black consumer who in turn.... This is the Freedom Plan.

Does Affirmative Action Really Work?

Affirmative action programs work -- they do what they are supposed to do, namely, enhance opportunities for minorities and women.

Because those groups have traditionally been excluded from academic programs, skilled trades, and other employment opportunities, affirmative action programs are necessary.

Despite the massive assault on affirmative action conducted by a government that should be implementing it, there are signs that the principle has widespread acceptance -- not least because it has proven its effectiveness.

One way to tell if affirmative action actually does create greater employment opportunities for excluded groups is to look at the hiring experiences of government contractors, who must file detailed reports on the race and gender of their employees and who must implement affirmative action plans with goals and timetables.

The Labor Department's Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs monitors those reports, and several studies have been made comparing the racial makeup of companies subject to federal oversight and those that are not.

The results of those studies consistently show that minority employment among federal contractors grew faster than in firms not covered by affirmative action.

Among large employers, affirmative action has become an integral part of corporate practice. It may have started out as something a company had to do to meet the requirements of federal agencies or of the civil rights laws. But because it worked, many companies are now relatively immune to the propaganda crusade against affirmative action.

Much of that crusade is directed against the purported evils of categorizing workers by race and sex. But business has always known that you can't meet goals without measurements.

Corporations set minority hiring goals the way they set marketing goals -- through statistical analysis and timetables. Anything else would be dishonest, for there would be no way to tell whether a program is successful.

So corporations keep close measurements on their hiring and promotion figures, and the best make their equal opportunity programs a priority. Most companies with affirmative action programs say they plan to stick to their present efforts.

Sometimes the courts have ordered implementation of affirmative action plans to remedy gross violations of constitutional rights. Recently, the Justice Department tried to overturn some of those court decrees as they relate to state and local governments, arguing that only the individuals who can prove they were victims of discrimination should be covered by the plans.

But the law clearly intended affirmative action as a remedy to solve systemic discrimination, not individual complaints. On the rare occassions when courts have ordered quotas, it was to remedy past quotas that excluded all but white males.

What doesn't make sense is opposition to affirmative action procedures that have taken root in our society and have benefited both workers and employers. Guidelines set by the courts, including several Supreme Court rulings, ensure that white males are not victimized by procedures intended to broaden opportunities in our society.

When the government claims to support affirmative action without using numbers, it is tantamount to opposing effective affirmative action. For those numbers represent people -- people who would not have equal opportunities without vigorous affirmative programs to include them in the mainstream.

Money - Saving Strategies For Tax Simplifaction Part 1

The wide-ranging overhaul of the U.S. tax system proposed by President Reagan will, if enacted, affect every taxpayer -- many for better, some fo worse. There is no guarantee, of course, that this particular plan will become law; indeed, there is a strong possibility it will be changed, perhaps extensively.

However, since the market is anticipating a major tax reform this year, it's a good time to reevaluate you investment portfolio. Not being tax advisers, we at Shearson Lehman Brothers have consulted one of the nation's leading accounting firms, Coopers & Lybrand, to suggest several steps you may wish to consider.

Keep in mind that the main feature of both the Reagan proposal and most alternative tax reform plans is lower tax rates. So deferring income into future years and accelerating deductions into the present year (especially if you're not in the top 50 percent bracket) will probably maximize your after-tax dollars.

Thus, for example, if you are self-employed or even if you do some consulting or freelance work "on the side," you might defer billing your clients for work done in the last quarter of this year until after January 1, 1986. It may also make sense for you to prepay a reasonable amount of expenses, such as medical bills (say, for elective surgery) or state and local taxes, so that you can deduct them this year and get the maximum tax benefit.

For short-term cash investments, consider buying Treasury bils that mature in 1986. Reason: Interest income will be deferred until next year.

For those investments on which you have made "paper" profits, postpone, if possible, recognizing your long-term capital gains. The reason is that the Reagan plan wold reduce the maximum long-term capital gain tax rate rom 20 percent to 17.5 percent and other proposals would make it even lower.

You can put off capital gains by using one of the following techniques. Because these are all sophisticated trading methods, don't attempt them without the expert assistance of a financial Consultant.

* Sell short an equivalent number of shares of the same security on which you have an unrealized gain. Reason: The gain is recognized in the year in which the original shares are delivered to close the short sale. The holding period ends at the date of the short sale. Thus, it is possible to defer the income into 1986 or later.

* Sell securities on the installment plan. Reason: An installment sale is a method of selling securities immediately but collecting the proceeds (thereby deferring the income) at a future date. An investor with a security held at a gain can benefit from such a sale under both current and proposed tax laws.

* Buy put options (i.e., the right to sell a certain number of shares of a particular stock at a pre-set price within a limited time period) and/or sell calls (i.e., the right to buy such shares). Reason: This is another way to defer recognizing unrealized capital gains, but you'll need expert advice to make the right move.

* Before the end of this year, sell stocks or bonds on which you have unrealized losses; simultaneously purchase other, similar securities. Reason: Such stock or bond "swaps" enable you to retain basically the same economic position in the market while realizing a capital loss in 1985 to offset recognized capital gains. Keep in mind that the new stock or bond must not be identical to the one sold, or else the IRS will disallow the loss.

Of course, while investing is certainly within the domain of your Financial Consultant, tax planning should be conducted with the full knowledge of your tax adviser. Discuss these strategies with your adviser to make sure they are best for you.

("Money-Saving Strategies for Tax Simplification: Part 2" will deal with the "Window of opportunities" that exists between now and whenever any revised tax system takes effect.)

An Independent View from Capitol Hill

BY HON. GUS SAVAGE
Member of Congress

Quiet Reflection Can Refire Spirit

In December of 1981, after approximately nine months of existence, this column attempted to stand back from items making news and take a detached look at the world conditions. We wanted to see if things would really look better if we kept disillusionment, anger and personal involvement in check.

At that time, I wrote: "Occasionally sobriety, if not sanity, requires that a person step back from the demands of routine and attempt to relflect objectively on the conditions of our country and the world.... This is especially true of us in the Congress who must daily cope with an unbelievable workload of legislation, constituent services and reports to the people."

My "objective" look revealed a paorama of Reagan legislative victories, the beginning of a vicious attack on affirmative action, rising unemployment, and a presidential mis-statement about "a situation in Europe where tactical nuclear weapons could be employed without either the United States or the Soviet Union pushing the doomsday button."

Now, nearly four years later, we are attempting to take a similar look. Let us see if the view has changed.

On Saturday, July 20th, the white minority government of South Africa declared the first "state of emergency" in that country in 25 years in an attempt to stamp out growing Black demands for freedom. The latest government move empoweres police to make arrests without warrants, impose curfews, seize property and limit press coverage in black townships. In short, the few rights Blacks possesed in that country have been stripped away. Although the Reagan administration has issued a rather forceful statement condemning apartheid, the President has made it clear that he plans to continue his bankrupt pOlicy of "constructive engagement" toward South Africa.

In his first official statement following his cancer surgery, President Reagan declared that his administration will hold Nicaragua's government responsible for any attack on Americans "anywhere in Central America." This definitely is saddling the Sandnistas with a heavy burden, considering there are large contingents of citizens in every country in Central America who look upon the United States as their enemy. Nicaraguan leaders are scapegoat for the recent airplane hijacking, just as Grenada was made an object of American rage after the bombing of the marine barracks in Lebanon.

It is indeed good to see a Black African nation hosting a major international conference. In recent days, more than 11,000 women from approximately 160 countries have descended on Nairobi, Kenya for the Decade for Women confeence, sponsored by the United Nations. It didn't take the American delegation long to start mouthing nonsense about confining discussions at the conference to "women's issues," as though women do not have an equal stake in all the problems of the world. The American delegation is headed by the President's daughter, Maureen Reagan.

The Reagan administration recently abandoned its efforts to revive the nomination of William Bradford Reynolds as associate attorney general, which the Senate Judiciary Committee had rejected more than a month ago. I for one cannot see how Reynolds could have done any more damage in the number 3 job in the Justice Department than he had done as head of the civil rights division, where he is spearheading the attack on affirmative action.

Well, if in this column, any more than in 1981, I did not succed in being detached and univolved, it demonstrates that not even for a few minutes can one change the habits of a life time.

Nevertheless, it is a good thing for a person to deliberately enter into moments of quiet reflection. As I said in 1981, such moments "do more than nuture sobriety and sustain sanity, but are refueling stations in the eternal war against oppression."

American Jewish Congress Condems South African Government

NEW YORK -- The American Jewish Congress condemned the South African government for stripping South Africans "of virtually an protection whatever from the arbitrary whim of a desperate and despotic government."

In a statement issued by its president, Theodore R. Mann, and its associate executive director, Phil Baum, AJCONGRESS declared that as "Americans and jews we cannot sit by silently while this moral calamity is acted out on the body of a helpless population."

The text of the statement follows:

We are appaled that the South African government has retreated even further into the dark night of oppression and racial bigotry. The latest edict strips South Africans of virtually any protection whatever from the arbitrary whim of a desperate and despotic government and places their very lives in exterme jeopardy.

As Americans and as Jews we cannot sit by silently while this moral calamity is acted out on the body of a helpless population. The South African declaration of a state of emergency demands an emergency response on the part of our own government. Now that "constructive engagement" has produced this horrendous result it is time for more serious, stringent, and severe measures. The South African government must not be allowed to doubt the condemnation of their acts by the people of the United States.

ever, did come to our defence. He became a Federal Judge in 1978. Jack was not only my legal defence attorney, he was alo my business consultant and general advisor, Recognizing the extreme poverty of my people and the permanent welfare-ward status which has so terribly effected us, it was Jack who advised me to use our tax-exempt status on Indian land to establish an independent economic base. By this time I had been black-listed, unable to find employment anywhere. Absolutely no one would employ me.

We began by buying back property which was within the original boundaries of the Puyallup Reservation, and putting the land back into "Indian Trust" properties.

Our small amount of reservation lands have always been coveted by those who would see us left with nothing. In spite of the fact that the protection of Indian lands was guaranteed by the Federal Government, the same Government sent Land commissioners to divide and sieze our lands without our consent. To facilitate these covert actions, the Allotment Act of 1904 was enacted. The Act gave title to land to Indian reserves to individuals, rather than having them held communally, enabling those individuals to sell their land without Tribal consent. Meagre token payments were dangled before the eyes of our people who were suffering from abject poverty. Sometimes the land transactions were not even legal.

The resulting outcry from our people and non-Indian allies forced the enactment of ta Federal law which would allow us (if we saved enough money) to re-purchase our land at inflated prices. We could than convey it back into reservation status. These lands are called "Indian Trust Properties"--the work trust means the president of the United States will hold title in trust for our people so that no one can trick or steal this land away from us ever again.

I began purchasing land within the city limits of the City of Tacoma, which was within the original boundaries of our reservation. Then I registered it back into "Reserbation Trust Property", reducing the City of Tacoma's base for taxation.

As I have previously stated, when I wa a youth all we had left or our reservation was 6 acres of cemetery land. When I left Tacoma in 1982, we had increased that to over 300 acres of reservation land.

By 1977 we had regained 16 acres of land. Including the cemetery, that meant there was a total of 22 acres. Alarmed by the loss of tax dollars and apprehensive over the possibility of us eventually acquiring all our original reservation, the City of Tacoma and Pierce County officials took steps to halt us. On August 17, 1977, the Port of Tacoma, Pierce County, the City of Fife,, the town of Milton, City of Puyallup, and two northwest Tacoma residents fled a suit against Washington, D.C., seeking an injunction to stop the Federal practice of creating Trust lands for members of the Puyallup Reservation.

The ongoing attempts to prevent us from registering our land back into reservation status failed. We continued to regain our lost land.

Our Tribal Council always had land claims before the courts, but we never got anywhere. A couple of times they offered us money to compensate for the loss of our land, but our stand was that we wanted our land returned.

There was a multi-million dollar complex of buildings on 45 acres of land, which rightfully belonged to the Puyallup Tribe. It was originally a hospital, but had been turned into a State juvenile detention facility. In 1981 we took our claim to the Federal Court and the presiding Judge was Jack Tanner. He ruled in favour of our claim. It was the first time a court had ever ruled in favour of Puyallup land claims. They had to vacate the premises and turn the land and buildings over to us. It is now the sight of our administration building, schools and other Tribal operations.

The Tanner decision, upheld in the Supreme Court of the United States in February of this year was seen as another threat to the citizens of Tacoma. They perceived there was a very real threat with this landmark decision. The Puyallup Tribe could continue on with their land claims and go after another 15,000 to 18,000 acres of land located within the city limits of the City of Tacoma and the Port area. This decision further intensified the ill-will towards me. I think that decision was the final straw. The effort to stop me was escalated. The Tacoma news media laid the groundwork for the hostile climate of opinion that would condone the grevious violation of right and justice that was manifested at my trial.

MINNESOTA SUPREME COURT REVERSES HOME SCHOOLER'S CONVICTION

Home schooling in Minnesota is no longer a crime.

On July 19th, the Minnesota Supreme Court reversed the criminal conviction of Mrs. Jeanne Newstrom, who had been found guilty of violating the state's compulsory attendance law because she taught her children at home.

The Court's opinion analyzed several constitutional arguments in a brief filed by the Rutherford Institute, a non-profit legal organization that specializes in religious freedoms and parental rights.

"This is an important case," said Rutherford Institute president John W. Whitehead. "It comes at a time when a god home school precedent is needed. The decision shows that through good legal argumentation, the home school battle can be won, establishing the right of parents to teach their own children."

At issue were Newstrom's qualifications to teach her two school-age daughters, Katie and Dawn, In 1982, school superintendent Ronald Maertens brought charges against the mother because she did not comply with the statute's requirement that children be "taught by teachers whose qualifications are essentially equivalent to the minimum standards for public school teachers." Newstrom lacks a accalaureate degree.

After a trial jury found Newstrom guilty, she appealed to the U.S. District court, which upheld the conviction.

In reversing that decision, the state Supreme Court ruled that the term "essentially equivalent" was unconstitutionally vague as a basis for a criminal conviction. As the Court pointed out, even the trial judge "did note that there was some question about the meaning of the statute. Since the trial court judges in this state cannot agre upon a reading of (the qualifications requirement), it is reasonable to conclude that lay persons would have even greater difficulty in interpreting it."

While the Court limited its ruling solely to the issue of statutory vagueness, the judges noted a broader constitutional dimension. "Legislation which 'unreasonably interferes with the liberty of parents and guardians to direct the upbringing and education of children under their control' has long been recognized as beyond the power of the state," the court said.

Several pages of the opinion centered on specific arguments presented in the Rugherford Institute's friend of the court brief. The brief stressed, in part, that parents' interest in directing their children's education is ofa constitutional magnitude equal to the parental interest in the religious upbringing of their children--an interest already recognized by the U.S. Supreme Court.

While the Minnesota court's narrow ruling did not fully accept all of the Institute's arguments, Whitehead was encuraged by the lengthy references. "It shows that the courts are seriously studying our briefs as a valid contribution," he said. "They know we're alive!"

The loud rap of Rep. Dan Rostenkowski's gavel signaled the beginning of a new and crucial phase of the tax reform battle.

As the House Ways and Means Committee ends its hearings, tax reform will enter a "midsummer lull," Rostenkowski said, with members of Congress reporting dwindling public enthusiasm.

Rostenkowski offered a mixed report on Tuesday: He said his panel will start writing its bill in September, with a goal of getting a bill through the House and sent to the Senate before November.

But he predicts major changes from President Reagan plan, and he doesn't expect a bill would go to the president's desk this year. "What I'm hearing is that the Senate doesn't want to do tax reform this year," he said.

He said a tax hike will be needed soon to help close the deficit, and said it should be tied to a new tax system.
